

2020
MCGILL
SPRING
INTERNATIONAL
CELLPHILM
FESTIVAL

Festival May 15, 2020

Well-being in the Time of Distancing

Cellphilms are short videos created by individuals and groups engaging with critical issues through their phones. Amid the COVID-19 pandemic, distancing has become a necessary practice and a great many of us rely on our cellphones to stay connected – now, more than ever -- this is an opportunity to use your cellphone (or other devices) in a more creative way.

The organizers of the annual McGill International Cellphilm Festival are inviting you to participate in this special Cellphilm Festival on the theme of Well-being In The Time of Distancing. We are inviting submissions that explore how individuals, groups, families and/or communities have been experiencing distancing. In your cellphilm please consider the following question:

---

What are you experiencing in the time of distancing?

---

We encourage creative online collaborations and submissions from individuals and groups of all ages!

Prizes available for the top cellphilms!

www.internationalcellphilmfestival.com

Festival May 15, 2020

How to Submit

Submissions should be between 30-90 seconds long and uploaded as public videos to Youtube. Please email the link to your video and a brief write up about your cellphilm below to to thecellphilmfestival@gmail.com by May 8, 2020, deadline.

Title of your cellphilm

Name (s) of the producer(s)

Youtube link

A short description of how you/your group went about creating the submission and the cellphilm's relation to the festival's theme

McGill

www.internationalcellphilmfestival.com